Wojan Window & Door Fills Several Key Positions

Charlevoix, Mich. (July 2016) – Wojan Window & Door, the Charlevoix, Mich.- based commercial window and door manufacturer, recently filled several key positions in manufacturing, engineering and sales.

Andy Robison was promoted to Operations Manager of Wojan's Coldwater, Mich. manufacturing facility. Robison has been with Wojan since 2004 as an estimator focusing primarily on the projected and double-hung window lines, plus the sliding glass doors, which are all built in Coldwater. Over his 12 years, he acquired an impressive amount of industry and product knowledge, in addition to learning about day-to-day operations of a production facility. All of this has made him an invaluable asset to Wojan, making this promotion an easy decision and certainly very well deserved.

Paul Wittbrodt was recently hired as Plant Manager in the Coldwater location. Wittbrodt spent over 29 years in production control and management in the auto industry before joining Wojan. With schooling in Lean Manufacturing at the University of Wisconsin and Business Management at the University of Indiana, Paul's knowledge, experience and skills will clearly be of great value to Wojan.

Brent Frazee joined the Engineering Department as a CAD Drafter and will work out of the Coldwater office. Frazee spent 9 years working for a commercial glass company in Maryland before moving to Michigan and working as an estimator for Kolbe & Kolbe Windows. With his long-time experience in the industry, he was already familiar with Wojan when he decided to take the opportunity to join the company.

Daniel Steinhart has been brought on board to represent Wojan in the Midwest. His sales territory will include select portions of Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan. Steinhart has over 30 years of sales and service experience in the building products industry.
