Wojan Window & Door Launches All-New Website

August 24, 2011

CHARLEVOIX, MI – Wojan Window & Door Corp., manufacturer of custom, commercial aluminum windows and sliding glass doors, launched a new website on Monday August 22nd. The company's first major online overhaul since 2007 encompasses substantial changes in design, significantly improved navigation and a larger, more robust library of content.

The needs of customers and architects were the main focus throughout the 6-month long re-design led by Wojan's web partner Gaslight Media of Petoskey, MI. Two noteworthy highlights include a larger collection of immediately accessible content such as product performance ratings, accessory details, specifications documents and CAD drawings; and a new photo gallery showcasing a broad array of past projects.

"I think some people might be surprised at the breadth of experience shown in our new online project gallery," explains President Dennis Wojan. "We have major projects on the boards and under our belt including numerous hotels, projects on military bases using our M-950 blast window, as well as student housing, schools and apartments in major metro areas like Chicago, Denver and Louisville."

In addition to these more standard upgrades, the launch debuts a unique Product Selector feature that offers quick product guidance based the project type selected. Targeted advice has been prepared by Wojan's window specialists, many of whom have been in the commercial building industry for more than 25 years.

As a company, Wojan is extremely pleased with the new site and views it as a modern way to boost its burgeoning brand in the marketplace while at the same time enhancing services for customers. They expect to work out lingering bugs in the coming weeks, but don't anticipate any major issues. The all-new www.wojan.com is live and open for business; offering a pleasant experience for new and returning virtual visitors.
